Bind off using your favorite stretchy bind off or the Knit Two Together Through the Back Loop bind off below. I like this one for shawls because it leaves a nice finish and is very stretchy without losing structure.

To work the "K2tog TBL" bind off you will start by knitting two stitches. Insert your left-hand needle into the front of both stitches on your right-hand needle and then knit those stitches together. (To me this looks exactly like a Slip, Slip, Knit stitch). Leave that stitch on your right-hand needle and knit the next stitch and bind those off in the same manner. Repeat until you have one stitch left on your needle. Break your yarn and pull the thread through the last loop to secure it. Weave in all ends and block to stated measurements. Block gently and try to avoid stretching the fabric to its full capacity. Stretching the shawl too much will flatten all of those gorgeous textures that you worked so hard to create!

Enjoy!
